What is this course about?

This popular course is ideal for beginners or repeat attendees. You will develop a composition through line, texture and tone by etching a zinc plate in a saline sulphate mordant. This five week course concentrates on some of the fundamental techniques of etching, including hard ground, soft ground and aquatint. There is a maximum of ten students per course guided by one to one tutoring from an acclaimed printmaker with over ten years printmaking experience.

The studio is a low-toxic environment with dedicated printmaking facilities for professional hands-on learning. Students benefit from the diversity of attendees, taught by internationally renowned printmaking artists at a central location, offering a unique educational experience in London.

By the end of this course:

You will be self led and have gained experience to continue developing your etching skills during Open Access on Thursday evenings or Saturday daytime. You may also wish to continue to attend our wider range of printmaking weekend, short and Certificate courses to further expand your printmaking knowledge.

About your tutor

Please see <http://www.katherine-jones.co.uk/> for examples of Katherine's work and history.

What level is the course and do I need any particular skills?

Ideal for complete beginners, for attendees requiring a refresher course or who have previously completed a Printmaking Taster Weekend.

How will I be taught, and what feedback and support will I get?

Your experienced tutor will support you throughout the course in both group sessions and one-to-one support providing daily feedback, critique and constructive advice. Each course ends in a final round up session and should you wish for any specific feedback or support, please speak with your tutor at the start of your course.

When I've finished, what course can I do next?

There are a variety of courses available as short courses over the Easter and the Summer holidays, also a range of evening classes in Printmaking as well as drawing, painting and sculpture.

A rolling programme of specialist Printmaking courses takes place on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and visiting printmakers facilitate specialist courses on weekends throughout the year. Open Access with supervision takes place on Thursday evening or Saturday daytime. Monthly Access is available for attendees with competent printmaking experience.

If you have more time available huge development can be made in your practice by attending one of our part time day classes in printmaking or the printmaking certificate programme. Please see all the options available on our web site.
