

Equality, Diversity & Inclusion Policy

1. Introduction

Art Academy London is an independent art school and registered charity based in central London. Founded in 2000 by Tanya Russell ARBS, a professional sculptor. Art Academy London began life as The Sculpture Academy in response to a perceived gap in skills-based teaching in art education, providing sculpture training in an atelier style.

The Academy has grown considerably since it opened. Today, Art Academy London operates as a close-knit, vibrant artistic community, providing high quality, intensive artistic training through academic programmes whilst also offering adult education classes in the evenings and at weekends to people in the wider community interested in the part-time study of art. Central to the ethos of the Academy is the championing of widening participation, accessible learning and inclusivity in arts education, which is reflected in the choice of the Open University as our validating partner for our undergraduate programmes.

Art Academy London is distinct from other institutions in that it combines the energy and creativity of a contemporary Fine Art college with its original atelier approach, offering students tuition in traditional artistic skills whilst also challenging them to develop their creative practices and academic skills. Furthermore, all the Academy's tutors are practising artists and specialists in their fields, contracted to work on a part time basis. This provides students with the opportunity to access a wealth of resources and advice from regular contact with established practising artists.

Art Academy London has no minimum entry requirements for academic programmes and welcomes applications from individuals with non-standard qualifications, patterns of prior study and/or experience from a variety of backgrounds. The student body at the Academy is diverse; we have a strong track record of working with SEN students and proudly enable a large number of mature students to return to study and realise often long held ambitions to explore careers in Fine Art and wider creative industries.

2. Context

The Public Sector Equality Duty under Section 149 of the Equality Act 2010 requires that a public authority* must, in the exercise of its functions have due regard to the need to:

- Eliminate discrimination, harassment and victimisation and any other conduct prohibited by or under the Act;
- Advance equality of opportunity between persons who share a relevant protected characteristic and persons who do not share it;
- Foster good relations between persons who share a relevant protected characteristic and persons who do not share it.

The relevant protected characteristics are:

- Age
- Disability
- Gender reassignment
- Marriage and civil partnership (but only in respect of eliminating unlawful discrimination)
- Pregnancy and maternity
- Race
- Religion or belief
- Sex
- Sexual orientation

People with caring responsibilities are also protected from discrimination by virtue of their association with people with protected characteristics.

The provisions of the public sector Equality Duty (introduced in 2011) apply to any organisation that serves a 'public function', even if it is not technically a public sector organisation.*

2.2 Prevent

This policy has been a key consideration in the development of the Academy's Prevent Policy. Monitoring of the Prevent Policy should take place over time to ensure the Academy is aware of any trends or patterns emerging involving particular groups of people and its impact on those groups.

3. Intended Audience

This Equality, Diversity & Inclusion policy is intended to be read, understood and complied with by all members of our community who work, study at or govern Art Academy London. It also applies to those who supply goods and services to or visit the Academy.

Art Academy London is committed to providing an inclusive and positive environment for all based on the principles of equality, dignity and respect, and to the integration of this ethos into all areas of policy and practice.

4. Consultation and engagement

We recognise the importance of consultation in all aspects of the implementation of our statutory equality duties and we will consult on our equality scheme, equality objectives, action plans, and other matters relevant to the Public Sector Equality Duty. This consultation will primarily be with students (through the Student Council) and staff, but may be expanded to encompass other groups and organisations, where relevant.

4.1 Student Engagement.

This policy and strategy is available to students, signposted in the Student Handbooks and they are informed about it and the Academy's Equality and Diversity Principles at induction.

4.2 Staff Engagement.

Equality and Diversity forms a key part of the annual CPD programme, with core tutors, the Executive Team and Staff required to undertake an online module on the Equality Act and its implications with the HE sector and are involved in a number of training events to familiarise them with policies and regulations, this being one of them.

It is intended that more in-depth themes concerned with the Equality and Diversity Strategy will form future sessions with the CPD programme.

5. Equality analysis

Equality analysis, formerly known as equality impact assessment, is the method used to give due regard to equality when developing and revising policy. Policy is broadly defined and means any proposed, amended or existing strategy, policy statement, project plan, procedure or practice, which is often, but not necessarily, a written document.

The aims of equality analysis are: to identify potential discrimination and remove or reduce this as far as possible, to consider how policy might support the promotion and advancement of equality of opportunity, and to consider how policy might help to promote and foster good relations.

All new policies and subsequent revisions will undergo equality analysis, conducted by individuals other than the author. In developing policies, concerns have been identified and policies rewritten to limit potential discrimination as part of this process; an example of this being the Academy Attendance Policy being amended to account for individual circumstances which may prevent the rules on attendance being met (such as those students with dependants or acting as primary carers).

A similar analysis of project briefs and learning resources is being developed as part of the Academy's quality assurance processes. When writing programme and module specifications, equality analysis has been a consideration and resulted in changes such as the replacement of 'craftsmanship' with 'craftspersonship'.

6. Our Equality and Diversity principles

- Art Academy London values the rich diversity of our students, staff and alumni, which is fundamental to our character. This diversity informs our teaching and learning and our employment practices, producing both inspired practitioners and leading professionals.
- We value diversity and we recognise that different people bring different perspectives, ideas, knowledge and culture, and that this difference brings great strength in an institution such as ours.
- We recognise that patterns of under-representation and differences in outcomes at The Art Academy can be challenged through positive action programmes.
- We respect the rights of individuals, including the right to hold different views and beliefs. We will not allow these differences to be manifested in a way that is hostile or degrading to others.
- We expect commitment and involvement from all our staff, students, partners and providers of goods and services in working towards the achievement of our vision.

7. Policy and Strategy Aims

In order to uphold these values and to sustain an accessible and inclusive environment for all students, staff, alumni, trustees, members of the public and partners in the community and commercial sector with whom we engage, we will:

- Celebrate the diversity of our community, recognising that it is integral to our success.
- Comply with the requirements of the Equality Act 2010 and demonstrate our compliance with the Public Sector Equality Duty, which requires us to have due regard to the three principles outlined in the introduction of this document.
- Challenge and address inequality, by prohibiting unlawful discrimination, harassment or victimisation as defined in the Equality Act 2010; in relation to the protected characteristics of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief (including lack of belief), sex (gender) and sexual orientation, whether such a characteristic is actual, perceived, or by association. This applies to all stages of the student and staff 'lifecycles' and to our engagement with service users, suppliers and external parties.
- Take seriously any allegation of breach of this policy and investigate it taking action via our disciplinary procedures, where necessary.
- Embed our Equality and Diversity principles in all our policies, strategies and processes, through active consultation with students and staff, and evaluation of the potential and actual impact.

7.1 Student experience

Ensure that the student experience is positive, fair and inclusive, in each of the following areas:

- Application and admission.
- Induction.
- Curriculum and course design.
- Access to estate, services, website information etc.

- Throughout the programmes.
- Assessment.
- Academic progression.
- Withdrawal, interruption of study and transfer.
- Complaints.

Ensure that the staff benefit similarly by the application of this policy, specifically in the areas of:

- Recruitment and selection.
- Contractual status and work-life balance.
- Job description, grading, pay and benefits .
- Induction.
- Probation.
- Appraisal.
- Employee relations.
- Staff development.

- Length of service and retention.

8. Implementation and responsibilities

This Equality and Diversity policy and strategy is owned and endorsed by the Board of Trustees, which has corporate responsibility for Art Academy London's Equality duties and for ensuring that an inclusive culture is promoted throughout the Academy.

The Principal is responsible for leading equality and diversity and for ensuring implementation of this policy, and that appropriate action is taken against breaches of this policy. Practical implementation of the equality duties is managed by the Director of Academic Quality, Standards and Student Experience for student and Academic-staff related matters and the Director of Operations and Finance for general staff related matters.

All students, staff and visiting tutors have an individual responsibility to support and foster the aims of this policy.

Under UK legislation and this policy, every member of staff and student has a responsibility to:

- Listen to what others have to say and respect their point of view.
- Understand that it is unlawful to discriminate on the grounds of race, religion, gender, sexual orientation or disability and that disciplinary action will be taken against those involved in discrimination, harassment or bullying on any grounds.
- Speak out if the situation demands it (e.g. if there is an immediate risk of escalation) or, more often, report it if they witness or are aware of bullying, vindictiveness, verbal or physical aggression and not assume that it is someone else's responsibility.
- Question their prejudices and assumptions.
- Avoid using language and behaviour that might offend others.
- Familiarise themselves with the responsibilities that equalities legislation places on them.
- Be sensitive to issues of cultural diversity in their work.

9. Complaints relating to alleged breaches of this Policy

All reported complaints relating to an alleged breach of this policy will be taken seriously, investigated and managed according to the Academy complaints procedure or, in the case of staff, via the grievance procedure. Serious breaches may lead to further action being taken under the relevant Disciplinary procedures.

Students who feel that they have experienced discrimination have recourse to the Academy’s student complaints procedure, but should first contact either their Programme/ Pathway Leader or the Academic Programme Manager for information, advice and guidance. Informal resolutions should be attempted in the first instance where possible.

Employees who feel they have experienced discrimination can pursue the matter through the formal grievance procedure, but should first contact their line manager, or, if the complaint concerns their line manager, the Operations Manager for information, advice and guidance. Informal resolutions should be attempted in the first instance where possible.

Members of the Public who wish to make a complaint should contact the Director of Operations in the first instance.

10. Review

This policy will be implemented September 2018 reviewed every four years in line with the requirements of the Equality Act. Amendments will be made in the interim, however, where legislation, case law or operational experience necessitate.

Appendix A: A guide to the Equality Act (Great Britain)

What is the Equality Act?

The Equality Act is applicable in England, Scotland and Wales. The main provisions of the Act were implemented in two phases: The first phase became law on 1 October 2010 and in broad terms it harmonises, updates and amends previous anti-discrimination legislation, providing greater protection for all individuals across a wide range of 'protected characteristics'. The second phase became law on 5 April 2011 and enacts a new 'public sector equality duty', which amends and expands the existing duty to cover a wider range of characteristics.

What is 'prohibited conduct' under the Act?

Direct discrimination and indirect discrimination, continue to be prohibited, but are now extended across all of the characteristics, with the exception of pregnancy and maternity. Pregnancy and maternity now has specific protection for the duration of pregnancy and up to 26 weeks after birth. Students are explicitly protected from less favourable treatment if breastfeeding.

Protection from harassment is extended to all characteristics with the exceptions of pregnancy and maternity, and marriage and civil partnership. Individuals are protected from victimisation, where a person makes an allegation or brings proceedings under the Act, and suffers a detriment as a result.

Discrimination by association is extended to cover all the characteristics, with the exception of pregnancy and maternity. For example, carers are protected because of their association with someone with a protected characteristic, such as a disabled person or an older person.

Similarly discrimination because of perception is extended to the same characteristics. This means that individuals who are treated less favourably because they are perceived to have a characteristic are protected, even though they don't have that characteristic.

It continues to be unlawful not to make a reasonable adjustment for a disabled person and a disabled person no longer has to show that their impairment affects a capacity, such as mobility or manual dexterity. It continues to be lawful to treat a disabled person more favourably than other people.

It is now unlawful to ask disability or health - related questions during a selection process, with some exceptions.

A new protection, discrimination arising from disability, has been introduced. It means that unfavourable treatment because of something connected with a person's disability is unlawful, for example, refusing to allow a student to use a recording device in a tutorial. In practice, providing that reasonable adjustments are made, discrimination should not arise from disability.

What are the positive action provisions?

The positive action provisions in the Equality Act replicate those in previous equality legislation. Where we reasonably think that people who share a protected characteristic suffer a disadvantage, have different needs, or have disproportionately low rates of participation in an activity, we may take action to overcome or minimise this, providing any action taken is proportionate. This provision applies to all functions, including employment and education, and we have and will continue to use these provisions where appropriate.
